My Dream

In the near future, I want to be software engineer. I believe that being with computers and programming codes fascinates me and I am passionate about it. I want my future profession to suit me, to define me, because I believe that would be enjoyable rather than forcing myself into other categories. I want to live a life, not just to survive it. I like to enjoy everything and I don't like regretting things that I didn't put a risk just because of cowardice. I want to find the person what I really am, and I need to find it to know what's really the true me and my purpose in life. I want to focus on the present, just like now. Yes, of course I have certain goals in life to make myself better in the near future but I want to trust my little steps for processing and shaping me better.

Thank You
Your Future Engineer!
